Product overview Rietveld Mondial (1957)

Gerrit Rietveld designed the Mondial chair especially for the world exhibition that was held in Brussels in 1958. The Mondial was Rietveld's "chair for the world". It's design is as minimalistic as it is innovative, created by one of the most important furniture designers of the 20th century. The first copies of the Mondial 2006 were officially presented in the Centraal Museum in Utrecht on 11 November 2006. The new Mondial is an authentic reproduction of Gerrit Rietveld's original design. The Mondial, one of the few project chairs that Rietveld designed, is now available in 6 different colours.

Product overview Rietveld Mondial

Characteristic of the Mondial is its clear minimalistic K-profile. Chair back, seat, legs and optional armrests come together at a single central torque tube. This makes the Mondial fascinatingly simple. The Mondial is available in two designs: without (117) and with (217) part-bakelite armrests. The seat and back are pressed from one piece of aluminium plate. The chair's undercarriage is made from bent sheet steel and it is attached to the chair by means of blind rivets. The leg plugs are made of black PVC. The Mondial 2006 was tested by TNO and approved according to ISO 7173, test level 3, which means that the chair is suitable for project use.

Each Mondial is supplied with a chip, a number and a matching certificate.
